Splendid India Tour—Part I

At the request of a few parishioners who expressed interest in visiting India, I decided to put together a tour to India about 18 months ago and worked with Indus Travels to make the arrangements. Although I was planning to take less than 20 people, 25 signed up for the tour. Unfortunately, three of them had to cancel the trip due to unexpected illness. So finally, there were 22 of us plus myself. Indus Travels made all the detailed arrangements including the air tickets for all guests.

Each one had to procure an Indian Visa online. Some found it frustrating, a few confusing, and for others it tested their computer knowledge and skills. However, all obtained their Visas with a week to spare.

The day before our travel date—January 4th—I was very nervous and anxious because Alaska Airlines canceled our flight from Redmond to San Francisco due to fog and other weather conditions for two consecutive days prior to our departure. Many flights were either canceled or delayed departing and arriving at Redmond. I didn't want to even think of the mess we'd have been in if Alaska had to cancel our flight for a third day. However, due to prayers and God's blessings, the weather conditions improved significantly at start 6 p.m., January 3rd, with no fog in the forecast for the following morning. Praise the Lord!

We all arrived at the airport about two hours ahead of time and joined a long line of people waiting to check-in. The check-in process went very well, and we left Redmond at 8:15 a.m. We arrived at SFO at 9:45 a.m. Twenty-two of us flew from RDM while one guest flew out of Portland to meet us in SFO. Our next flight from SFO was not until 2:50 p.m., but our 5-hour layover was actually a blessing because we had to exit the airport to take a train to get to the International Terminal. There we waited to check-in to Qatar Airways.

The crew came to their stations about 45 minutes after we arrived at the counter. The check-in process went without a hitch, and we went through the Security screening all over again. Most of us went to get some food and then gathered together at the gate to introduce ourselves and get to know one another.

Boarding started at 2:15, and we left SFO at about 3:30 p.m. for a 15-1/2 hour flight to Doha, the Capitol of Qatar. We arrived as scheduled and went through Security all over again to get to our next flight for India. It took only three hours to get to New Delhi—a "piece of cake" compared to the previous one.

After we deplaned, we went through Immigration, collected our luggage, and found our tour agent waiting for us. He welcomed us with a poomala (a flower garland), got our luggage onto the bus, and we were on our way to the hotel where we arrived at 5 a.m., local time and checked into our rooms. Most of us couldn't sleep due to the time change, I did have a sound sleep for about three hours, and then having a hot shower after two days was very refreshing.

We gathered for breakfast at 9 a.m., and there was so much food with so many Indian delicacies: vada (like a fritter), plain dosa (similar to a crepe), masala dosa (a more savory crepe), two types of idlies (lentil and rice cakes), local fruits, omelets, masala chai (a flavored tea beverage made from milk, aromatic spices and herbs), a variety of chadnies (similar to pastries), many varieties of rice preparations, and much more. Those who were brave tried some of the delicacies, while others went with what they were used to. Then, after breakfast, we were on our way for the city tour at 11 a.m.

Our first stop was at the largest mosque in India, built by Shah Jahan between 1644 and 1656. Situated in the Mughal Capitol of Shahjahanabad (today Old Delhi), it served as the imperial mosque of the Mughal emperors until the demise of the empire in 1857. The Jama Masjid was regarded as a symbol of Islamic power across India well into the colonial era. It was also politically significant during British rule and remains in active use as one of Delhi's most iconic sites, closely identified with the ethos of Old Delhi. We had to deposit our shoes at the entrance, and the ladies had to wear a gown to enter.

Most fascinating was the rickshaw ride. Two people each were assigned to a rickshaw pedaled by a driver. We were taken through the narrow allies of Old Delhi full of people. and we got a closer look at how business is conducted and lives are lived. There were people and vehicles everywhere—although mostly rickshaws and motor bikes. It was a fascinating experience available only in this part of the world. Then our rickshaw ride was ended where our tour bus was parked.

We then visited the resting place of Mahatma Gandhi, the Father of the Nation, who led the freedom struggle of India by nonviolent means. He was assassinated on January 30, 1948, as he was attending a prayer service. He died on the spot which today is marked with simple words, "Hi Ram." which in Hindi means "Oh God"—his last words. His life and teaching have left an indelible mark on human history, especially the history of India. After our visit there, we returned to our hotel.
