Burial and Cremation for Catholics: Part I

Having done many funeral services and accompanied many families in their loss and grief, I have realized that there are many who are not aware of the Catholic teachings and practices on burial and cremation and why. Therefore, I will be dedicating my page to reflect upon this important eschatological aspect of our faith for the next three weekends as we are in the month set aside to especially remember and pray for our deceased loved ones.

Professing belief in the resurrection of the dead and affirming that the human body is an essential part of a person's identity, the Catholic Church insists that the bodies of the deceased be treated with respect and laid to rest in a consecrated place. While the Catholic Church continues to prefer burial in the ground, it accepts cremation as an option but forbids the scattering of ashes, the growing practice of keeping cremated remains at home and treating them as compost for plants. Caring for the bodies of the deceased, the church confirms its faith in the resurrection and separates itself from attitudes and rites that see in death the definitive obliteration of the person, a stage in the process of reincarnation or the fusion of one's soul with the universe.

The Christian practice of burial was also strengthened by belief in the sanctification of the body as God's temple through the sacrament of baptism and nourishment by the Eucharist. This concept of sanctification of and through the body is ultimately based on the mystery of the Incarnation insofar as the Divine Word sanctified the human body by becoming man. This doctrine also underpins the practice of venerating the relics of the saints.

The Church not only practiced burial but also from the beginning designated specific areas for this purpose. These places were themselves considered as hallowed ground, and a rite was developed to consecrate them as cemeteries. Although interment was the universal Church practice for centuries, there was no general law banning cremation. This changed in 1886 when the Holy See banned cremation, which was being promoted by several Masonic groups as a means of rejecting Christian belief in the resurrection. This ban was incorporated into the 1917 Code of Canon Law.

In 1963, the Congregation for Faith issued an instruction permitting cremation as long as it was not done as a sign of denial of the basic Christian belief in the resurrection of the dead. The permission was incorporated into the Code of Canon Law in 1983 and the Code of Canons of the Eastern Churches in 1990. In doing so, the Church recognized that, in the vast majority of cases, those seeking cremation were no longer doing so as a means of denying the bodily resurrection but for mostly practical purposes.

This was the basis of the revised Code which says in Canon 1176: "The Church earnestly recommends the pious custom of burial to be retained; but it does not forbid cremation, unless this is chosen for reasons which are contrary to Christian teaching." The Catechism of the Catholic Church echoes this situation in No. 2301: "The Church permits cremation, provided that it does not demonstrate a denial of faith in the resurrection of the body."

The key to our understanding is to realize that our body is sacred, and the Church would like us to treat our body with honor and respect even after it is dead. Christ took upon a human body. Our bodies have been nourished by the body and blood of Christ. Christ did not leave His body behind. Thus we believe that, like Christ, our bodies too will one day be reunited with our souls. "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore, honor God with your bodies" (1 Cor. 6: 19–20).

Olivewood Carvings

We are once again having olivewood carvings available to purchase after all the Masses on the weekend of November 18th/19th.

The proceeds go to support the Christian/Catholic families in the Holy Land, which is the major source of their income for them there.

The carvings come from more than 80 families in Bethlehem—and all are all very beautiful, unique items (nativities, crucifixes, rosaries, statues, etc.).

The Christian population has dropped from 22% to less than 2% in the past two decades, and this is a way to help support them to be able to stay there.

Thank you for your help and support,
