St. Francis of Assisi: Living the Gospel Radically—Part 3

Francis did not try to abolish poverty; he tried to make it holy. When his friars met someone poorer than they were, they would eagerly rip off the sleeve of their habit to give to the person. They worked for all necessities and only begged if they had to. But Francis would not let them accept any money. He told them to treat coins as if they were pebbles in the road.

When the bishop was horrified at the hard life of the Friars, Francis said, “If we had any possessions we should need weapons and laws to defend them.” Also, Francis reasoned, what could you do to a man who owns nothing? You can’t starve a fasting man; you can’t steal from someone who has no money; you can’t ruin someone who hates prestige. They were truly free.

Francis was a man of action. His simplicity of life extended to ideas and deeds. If there was a simple way, no matter how impossible it seemed, Francis would take it. So, when Francis wanted approval for his brotherhood, he went straight to Rome to see Pope Innocent III. You can imagine what the pope thought when this beggar approached him! As a matter of fact, he threw Francis out. But when he had a dream that this tiny man in rags held up the tilting Lateran basilica, he quickly called Francis back and gave him permission to form a Religious Order.

Francis acted quickly because he acted from the heart. Once he was so sick and exhausted, his companions borrowed a mule for him to ride. When the man who owned the mule recognized Francis he said, “Try to be as virtuous as everyone thinks you are because many have a lot of confidence in you.” Francis dropped off the mule and knelt before the man to thank him for his advice.

Another example of his directness came when he decided to go to Syria to convert the Moslems while the Fifth Crusade was being fought. In the middle of a battle, Francis decided to do the simplest thing and go straight to the sultan to make peace. When he and his companion were captured, the real miracle was that they weren’t killed. Instead, Francis was taken to the sultan who was charmed by Francis and his preaching. He told Francis, “I would convert to your religion, which is a beautiful one—but both of us would be murdered.”

Francis did find persecution and martyrdom of a kind—not among the Moslems—but among his own brothers. When he returned to Italy, he came back to a brotherhood that had grown to 5,000 in 10 years. Pressure came from outside to control this great movement—to make them conform to the standards of others. His dream of radical poverty was too harsh, people said. Francis responded, “Lord, didn’t I tell you they wouldn’t trust you?” He finally gave up authority in his order. Now he was just another brother, like he’d always wanted.

Francis’ final years were filled with suffering as well as humiliation. Praying to share in Christ’s passion, he had a vision when he received the stigmata—the marks of the nails and the lance wound that Christ suffered—in his own body.

Years of poverty and wandering had made Francis ill. When he began to go blind, the pope ordered that his eyes be operated on. This meant cauterizing his face with a hot iron. Francis spoke to “Brother Fire”: “Brother Fire, the Most High has made you strong and beautiful and useful. Be courteous to me now in this hour, for I have always loved you, and temper your heat so that I can endure it.” And Francis reported that Brother Fire had been so kind that he felt nothing at all. That was when he wrote his beautiful “Canticle of the Sun” that expresses his brotherhood with creation in praising God.

Francis never recovered from this illness. He died on October 4, 1226, at the age of 45. Francis is considered the founder of all Franciscan orders and the patron saint of ecologists and merchants.
