Halloween, derived from “All Hallows’ Eve,” is the vigil of All Saints’ Day—one of the most important solemnities in the Catholic liturgical year. However, in many places today, Halloween has drifted far from its Christian origins, becoming associated with commercialism, fear, and even occult imagery.

For Catholics, rather than rejecting the day outright, it offers a powerful opportunity for evangelization and inculturation. The Church’s mission, as articulated by Pope Paul VI in Evangelii Nuntiandi, is to “transform humanity from within and make it new” (EN 18). This transformation includes reclaiming cultural celebrations and infusing them with the Gospel message. Halloween, therefore, can be rediscovered as a Christian feast of hope, victory, and remembrance of the communion of saints.

1. Etymology of Halloween—New beginning of its Catholic meaning: The word Halloween comes from All Hallows’ Eve, “Hallow” (saint/holy) + “E’en” (evening) → “the evening before All Saints’ Day.” Historically, the Church placed this feast (Solemnity of All Saints, November 1st) to honor all holy men and women who share in God’s glory, followed by All Souls’ Day (November 2nd), when Catholics pray for the faithful departed.

The Catechism teaches that the saints “contemplate God, praise Him, and constantly care for those whom they have left on earth” (CCC 2683), while “Our prayer for them is capable not only of helping them, but also of making their intercession for us effective” (CCC 958).

Halloween, then, originally prepared the faithful to enter into these profound mysteries, the victory of grace over sin, of life over death, of light over darkness. When seen through this lens, dressing as saints, lighting candles, or visiting cemeteries becomes a participation in the Church’s theology of the communion of saints.

2. The Principle of Inculturation: The Catholic Church has long affirmed that the Gospel must take root in every culture, transforming its symbols and practices. St. John Paul II describes this process in Redemptoris Missio: “Inculturation is the intimate transformation of authentic cultural values through their integration in Christianity and the insertion of Christianity in the various human cultures” (RM 52).

Applying this to Halloween, the Church does not need to suppress cultural expressions of costumes, storytelling, or harvest festivities. Instead, these can be purified and reoriented toward Christ; e.g., rather than glorifying fear or evil, Catholic communities can highlight the triumph of the saints, the power of grace, and the reality of eternal life.

The Directory on Popular Piety and the Liturgy encourages this approach, noting that “popular devotions . . . when properly directed, can be a valuable aid to the liturgical life of the Church” (DPPL 9). Thus, a re-Christianized Halloween could include activities like “Saints’ Festivals,” prayer vigils, or catechesis on the Last Things—death, judgment, heaven, and hell.

3. Evangelization Through Culture: Pope Francis, in Evangelii Gaudium, calls Catholics to engage the culture with creativity and joy: “Grace supposes culture, and God’s gift be-comes flesh in the culture of those who receive it” (EG 115).

By entering into popular cultural moments like Halloween, the Church meets people where they are and reveals Christ’s light amid the shadows. Rather than condemning every cultural expression, the Church can offer a counter-cultural witness—a joyful celebration that points to the ultimate victory of holiness.

Catholic parishes and schools can host events such as: “Holyween” festivals where children dress as saints or biblical heroes, prayer vigils for the deceased—connecting Halloween to All Souls’ Day, educational activities about the meaning of the communion of saints and the reality of Christian hope. Such practices align with the call of Christus Dominus that bishops should “make every effort to imbue with the spirit of Christ the human society in which they live” (CD 12).

4. Discerning and Purifying the Modern Halloween: The Church also calls for discernment. Not every cultural expression can be baptized; some elements oppose the Gospel. Pope Francis warns in Gaudete et Exsultate: “We need to recognize and combat the subtle forms of spiritual corruption that hide behind appearances of good” (GE 166).

Thus, Catholics should avoid elements of Halloween that glorify violence, fear, or the demonic. The Church rejects anything that trivializes evil or undermines the truth of salvation. Instead, Halloween should remind us that Christ has conquered death. As St. Paul proclaims, “Death has been swallowed up in victory” (1 Cor 15:54).

By emphasizing the light of Christ over the darkness of fear, the Catholic celebration of Halloween becomes a proclamation of the Gospel—the triumph of the Resurrection.

5. Halloween as a Catechetical and Liturgical Moment: Halloween provides a rich moment for catechesis about the communion of saints, the meaning of death, and the hope of resurrection. As the Directory for Popular Piety notes, “Popular piety should be oriented towards the liturgy and lead the faithful to the mysteries celebrated there” (DPPL 58). Catechists and priests can teach how All Hallows’ Eve leads into the solemn feasts of All Saints and All Souls, forming a three-day reflection on the Church Triumphant (heaven), the Church Suffering (purgatory), and the Church Militant (earth). This “Triduum of the Dead” reveals the unity of the Body of Christ beyond death.

When celebrated with faith and discernment, Halloween can once again become a holy night, a time of prayerful joy, remembrance, and witness. It reminds Christians that holiness, not horror, has the final word.

In the spirit of Evangelii Nuntiandi, the Church does not reject culture, but transforms it from within, making it a vehicle for grace (EN 20). Halloween thus becomes not a night of fear, but of faith—a prelude to the glory of All Saints and the mercy of All Souls. As Pope Francis reminds us, “A people that cherishes its popular expressions of faith enriches the Church with a spirituality that evangelizes” (EG 122). Redeemed and reoriented, Halloween can truly become a celebration of light shining in the darkness, an invitation for all to become saints. —Fr. Victor Mena

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS COUNCIL 1872

“COATS FOR KIDS DRIVE”

“Uncle George” LeDoux is pictured alongside youth from St. Francis Church proudly wearing their new winter coats provided through the Knights of Columbus “Coats for Kids” program.

Your Knights continued our commitment to serve the children of Central Oregon by delivering 26 cases of new winter coats to local parishes and non-profit organizations. These coats ensure that children in need will be warm and cared for during the cold months ahead. Distribution highlights include:

- ◆ 6 cases (72 coats) to St. Francis Parish in Bend, directly supporting parish families.
- ◆ 4 cases (48 coats) to Bethlehem Inn in Bend, aiding children from families experiencing homelessness.
- ◆ 4 cases (48 coats) to St. Vincent de Paul in Bend, extending the mission of compassion to those most in need.
- ◆ 4 cases (48 coats) to the Family Access Network (FAN) in Sisters, supporting local school children.
- ◆ 8 cases (96 coats) to the Family Access Network (FAN) in Bend, reaching students across five Central Oregon school districts.

Special thanks to our dedicated council members for their leadership and hands-on involvement. Together, we continue to live out our mission of charity, unity, and fraternity, ensuring that no child in our community goes without the basic necessity of a warm coat.

Please welcome Ella Hayes. She is very excited to be joining the St. Francis community as our First Grade teacher!

Ella grew up in Grants Pass, Oregon, before attending George Fox University, where she earned her degree in Elementary Education. During her time at GFU, she was fortunate to work in a variety of classrooms, which helped her discover a deep love for teaching early learners.

Before graduating, she moved back to Grants Pass and spent a year working in the local school district supporting special education students and gaining valuable hands-on experience. In January of this year, she moved to Central Oregon to complete her student teaching in Terrebonne.

There, she had the joy of teaching a wonderful group of first graders as she wrapped up her degree—an experience that solidified her passion for working at the primary level.

Since moving to Central Oregon, Ella has truly fallen in love with the area. She loves spending time outdoors—whether it's hiking, paddleboarding, or just enjoying a walk around her neighborhood. In her free time, she also loves reading, baking, practicing embroidery, and playing the guitar or the flute. She has a love for learning, and she is always eager to explore new hobbies and learn new skills!

She is very excited for the upcoming school year and feels incredibly blessed to have the opportunity to learn and grow alongside the St. Francis community!
